Skin Care Line Created by Woman with Local Roots

When Patricia Bazan Garrubbo was pregnant with her first baby, the idea of creating a healthy, natural and effective skincare line was also born. Thanks to her attention to what she was putting in and on her body and the concern for healthy living, led her and Gina Garrubo, her cousin by marriage, to co-create Terralina. With her background in developing and marketing consumer products at a pharmaceutical company in Paris, the Argentinean born Bazan Garrubbo used this knowledge alongside her cousin to develop this line of products.

Terralina is a new natural facial and body skincare line created for those who care about their bodies inside and out. Terralina's ingredients are naturally derived and botanically-based because both women believe that it's the safest, most nourishing ingredients in skincare. It's an effective, non irritating, anti-aging skincare line that is a pleasure for all the senses. They also care about the environment, so they were careful to commit to using environmentally sensitive packing practices.

Prior to launching Terralina, Bazan Garrubbo had a dynamic career in the arts, as the owner and Director of Garrubbo Bazán Gallery, where she dealt contemporary works of art. Prior to this she practiced law in New Orleans where she also graduated from Tulane University and Tulane Law School. Today, she resides in New York City with her husband and her children.
