The product: Terralina Facial Moisturizer, 1.5 oz. for $42; Terralina Gentle Facial Cleanser, 3.5 ounces for $24; and Terralina Gentle Facial, 6.7 ounces for $20.

The promise: "Terralina natural skincare products are specifically designed to treat all types of skin without risk of irritation. Terralina's facial regimen, which includes Gentle Facial Cleanser, Gentle Facial Toner and Facial Moisturizer, does not contain parabens, PEGs, ethoxylates, glycols, acrylates, silicones, artificial fragrance or any harsh alcohols, which are often the culprits of dry, irritated skin. Simple. Luxurious. Effective. — It's all you need."

What the tester said: I really like this regimen. The toner was excellent for cleaning off make-up as well as applying after the cleanser. The moisturizing cream was thicker than my skin normally likes, but by applying it while the toner was still wet, I could get it to go on thinly. And normally I don't like cream cleansers (they generally leave me with small oil bumps), but I found a great use for this one. I would clean my face with a foaming cleanser in the morning before going to the gym and use this cleanser in the shower after my workout. This way I wasn't drying out my skin with two strong cleanings in the morning.

My combination skin flourished with the use of these products.
